

This architecture map assumes that each logical element can be separated into multiple nodes / physical machines. This diagram represents a possible "most complicated" design.

However, the system will function just as well on a single machine

